Protect what you value most...

Today, all schools must have an active plan for creating and maintaining a healthy and safe environment for students and faculty. The acts of violence in the schools over the past several years and the current threat of terrorism have revived an interest by educational institutions to assess their security needs and make responsible decisions.

Administrators are now recognizing that in order to provide the safest possible educational environment—as well as keep registrations up and maintain peace of mind in the community—they must install intelligent security systems. Whether you operate a small nursery school or a university campus, Honeywell understands the unique requirements that exist in an educational environment, and can provide you with the very best security solutions to protect your students, faculty, employees and physical assets at all times.
